HALF HOLIDAY IS DECLARED

Trade Council Will Cap the Climax
With a Grand Ball at 9:30 o'clock Tonight.

The total attendance for the third day of the Texas Cotton Palace season was 8,465, according to the official statement by Secretary S. N. Mayfield, showing a substantial increase over the gate receipts of the same day last year.

Today all school children under 12 years of age will be admitted free, and all school children under 15 years of age attending in a body, accompanied by a teacher who will vouch for each child as a student of her school, will be admitted free.

Glen Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Mitchell, of 711 North Fifth street, entered in the baby show for the class which included babies between the ages of 3 and 4 years, was awarded the prize as the best girl in the show.

Jewell Smiley of Elm Mott, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smiley of Elm Mott, entered in the baby show for the class which included babies between the ages of 2 and 3 years, was awarded the prize for the best boy in the show.

Pretty Incident.

These two little folks were introduced by Clarence H. Cox, director in charge of the baby show, when the final awards had been made. He said two babies winning the honor should be acquainted and he put one tiny hand into another tiny hand, and the wee tots shyly looked at one another, and then the boy looked at his father and the girl looked at her mother. The parents of these two prize winners in the sweepstakes had their arms loaded with prizes which came to the children and to the parents by virtue of the general excellence which the judges decided was represented by them. The little Mitchell girl got into the sweepstakes by virtue of being selected as the best girl between the ages of 3 and 4 and the Smiley boy was given the prize for the best boy between 2 and 3 years old, so each child won two blue ribbons.

Baby Show a Success.

The baby show was a success. There were over 200 babies entered. They ranged in age from babies in arms but a few months old to those who could walk and play about the big coliseum. Mothers had some of them and fathers had some. In some instances mothers sat in the boxes and watched father try for the baby prize and for "Father's prize" while in other instances fathers sat in the boxes and watched mothers try for the baby prize and the "mother's prize," so that it was "tit for tat" as to sexes in the big affair.

Cox as Director.

C. H. Cox was director in charge and was assisted by Director E. F. Drake. Mrs. J. W. Haas, general chairman in charge of all the women's work, was one of the active managers, and next in importance in the show came Mrs. A. W. Koch and Mrs. Walter Greer as joint chairmen for the occasion. Assisting these were the following ladies: Mrs. J. H. Smiley, Mrs. C. P. Link, Mrs. J. H. Mayfield, Mrs. Frank West, Mrs. Len Willett, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. J. C. Lattimore, Mrs. Horace Smith, Mrs. Oscar Crow, Mrs.

INFORMATION REGARDING MADE BARR'S CAREER

Meade Barr is 32 years old. Convicted of mail-stealing in Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 23, 1903.

Paroled in 1910, but later returned to prison.

Paroled again in 1913 and sent to Dallas.

Left Dallas night of July 28 (according to Barr's statement) and later arrested in Hope, Ind., on charge of stealing horse and buggy at Greensburg, Ind.

Alleged confession gained from Barr while in the Indiana reformatory some weeks later.

Dallas, Nov. 3.—Up to a late hour tonight Meade Barr, the Indiana convict, who confessed to the murder of Miss Florence Brown, had not been indicted by the Dallas county grand jury.

It is not at all necessary for one to be of a scientific turn of mind to find much that is interesting in the exhibit of the meteorological department of the Waco Morning News over which Dr. L. Block, weather observer, presides at the Cotton Palace.

The exhibit occupies the office room immediately to the right at the main entrance of the main building. Here may be seen Dr. Block's collection of meteorological instruments, delicate machines with which currents of air are measured, the density of the atmosphere computed, the rise and fall of humidity reckoned, direction and speed of the winds recorded and rainfall measured. There are thermometers and barometers, meteorographs, aneroidometers, hygrometers and other self-registering instruments, such as are employed by the experts of the weather bureau of the United States agricultural department.

Explaining the Process.

At 7 o'clock each evening the weather man is hand to explain to the visiting throng the uses of the instruments and the process of determining today what weather will be tomorrow. Weather Man Block also has on hand a large quantity of literature sent here by the United States weather bureau at Washington for free distribution and all interested visitors are supplied with booklets and pamphlets containing much interesting information concerning the workings of the government's weather service and that maintained in Waco by the Morning News.

The weather prognostications appearing daily in this newspaper are based upon computations made from the twenty-four hours ended at 9 o'clock each night. Official weather maps and reports showing the movements of winds and atmospheric pressure assist Weather Man Block in the daily reading of his meteorological instruments.

Weather Man's Infant Prodigy.

Frequently found at the elbow of the weather observer is a bright-faced youngster, who assists in the demonstrations. He is Harold Block, 8 years old, son of the Waco weather sharp. Harold is an eager student of the science of meteorology and has become so proficient in reading the instruments that it is no trick at all for him to give an accurate record of prevailing atmospheric conditions.

The hours are long and the work arduous for the men detailed for duty at the Cotton Palace, but they are all too much interested in their work and too fond of the place to give voice to a complaint, and they are working together as harmoniously and cheerfully as possible.

Of the warnings mentioned, those of storms and hurricanes, issued for the benefit of marine interests, are the most important and peculiarly valuable. Storm warnings are displayed at more than 300 points along the Atlantic, Pacific and gulf coasts and the shores of the Great Lakes, including every port and harbor of any considerable importance, and so nearly perfect has this service become that scarcely a storm of marked danger to maritime interests has occurred for years for which ample warnings have not been issued from twelve to twenty-four hours in advance.

The reports from the West Indies are especially valuable in this connection, as they enable the bureau to forecast with great accuracy the approach of those destructive hurricanes which, during the period from July to October, are liable to sweep the gulf and Atlantic coasts. The sailings of the immense number of vessels engaged in our ocean and lake traffic are largely determined by these warnings, and those displayed for a single hurricane are known to have done in port on our Atlantic coast vessels valued with their cargoes at over $30,000,000.

Cold Wave Signalling.

The warnings of those sudden and destructive temperature changes known as cold waves are probably next in importance. These warnings, which are issued from 24 to 36 hours in advance, are disseminated throughout the threatened regions by means of flags displayed at regular weather bureau and subdisplay stations, by

Controversy by Notice to Dictator of Mexico

Diplomatic Corps Is Summoned to the Palace—Secretary Bryan Will Not Comment—Telegraph Operator In State Department Is Kept on Duty Until Late Into the Night

Mexico City, Nov. 3.—President Huerta has been told he must resign the presidency of Mexico without loss of time and that he must not leave as his successor Gen. Aureliano Blanquet, his minister of war, or any other member of his official family or the unofficial coterie whom he might be expected to control. This ultimatum from Washington was conveyed to President Huerta through his private secretary, Senor Rabago, by Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires, acting under instructions from the state department.

Senor Rabago presented the memorandum to his chief late Sunday, but up to late this evening President Huerta had returned no answer and, as far as could be learned, had guarded its contents from almost all of his official and intimate counsellors.

Those who learned of the Washington note regard the position of General Huerta as one in which he will be forced to give one of two answers—refusal pointblank to comply with the demand, possibly going so far as to hand the diplomatic representative his passports or the elimination of himself officially. Those most intimate with the president insist that the latter course will not be taken, for many reasons, chief among which would be tantamount to submission to the rebels. Official Mexico is no longer in doubt that the Washington administration favors the rebel cause, and is being convinced this is the means adopted by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan to assist Carranza.

General Huerta summoned to the national palace tonight the diplomatic corps, but for what purpose was not revealed.

Three of the ministers, those of Germany, Norway and Russia, were absent. They have been in Vera Cruz, where they were in conference with President Wilson's representative, John Lind, who is understood to be conversant with latest representations from Washington.

DIAZ IS AT HAVANA

FUGITIVE FROM MEXICO TELLS INCIDENTS OF HIS ESCAPE.

Transferred From U. S. Battleship
Michigan to the Esperanza During Rough Weather.

Havana, Nov. 3.—General Felix Diaz, a fugitive from Mexico, arrived here yesterday aboard the steamer Esperanza.

He was transferred from the United States battleship Michigan to the Esperanza of the Mexican coast during high winds in a lifeboat. Diaz was accompanied by José Belisario Sandoval, an attorney, and Cecilia Locon, both of whom were also refugees on the American warship. An American newspaper correspondent, Alexander J. Williams, who was with General Diaz at the time of his flight to the battleship Louisiana at Vera Cruz, was also on board the Esperanza.

General Diaz recounted some of the incidents from the time of his arrival at Vera Cruz on the steamer Cordova on his departure from Mexico.

Many of his followers registered as guests at the hotel where he had apartments but thirty-two out of forty were placed under arrest by the federal authorities. He was afraid of falling into General Huerta's hands and so made a midnight escape from the hotel by means of a rope. A few friends with drawn revolvers aided him in reaching the steam launch which took him aboard the Wheeling, from which he was transferred to the Louisiana and later to the Michigan.

General Diaz expressed high appreciation of his treatment by General Fletcher. He looks to be in good health and displayed much interest in the fate of the members of the special Mexican mission to Japan, who were taken back to Mexico on the training ship Zaragoza, after having been first sent to Havana. This evening he visited Lieut.-Col. Del Rio, who was attached to the commission but was permitted to land at Havana on account of illness.

Diaz Gives Out Statement.

The general gives out the following statement:

"To the Mexican People: When I left the country to fulfill the mission entrusted to me towards the Japanese government, constitutional order prevailed in full vigor. This lawful situation has maintained until the day on which by instructions sent to Paris, I was relieved of my high charge and left at liberty to fulfill the obligation voluntarily contracted Washington, Nov. 3.—The Associated Press dispatches from Mexico City were read to Secretary Bryan over the telephone shortly after midnight. He manifested much interest, but said he would make no official comment.

All during the evening the secretary had been expecting new developments and prepared to stay up late to receive dispatches. The night operator in the telegraph room of the state department, who usually leaves the key at midnight, was ordered to work through the night.

News of the ultimatum had been expected in official circles, though unusual efforts had been made to keep secret the plans of the administration.

Early in the evening an intimation was conveyed to Secretary Bryan by the press that some announcement was expected in Mexico City. He acquainted President Wilson with the fact, but the president had retired when the news dispatches came and was not awakened.

No intimation had been received up to midnight by the state department as to what the nature of Huerta's reply might be, and no news had been received officially that a meeting of the diplomatic corps had been called tonight. These developments were awaited with keenest interest by officials here.

Outwardly, administration officials face the situation calmly and some of them express a feeling of optimism over the future. It was also evident that published stories predicting armed intervention were not justified at this time. Persons close to the White House declared that both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan were still hopeful that their policy would succeed and added that any assumption that plans for intervention were being laid was unwarranted.

There is a disposition to handle the present diplomatic efforts by confining the discussion to informal parleys at Vera Cruz and Mexico City, unembarrassed by the publication of any documents which in the Lind-Gamboa correspondence drew into the negotiations the public opinion of both countries as an important factor. The intention, it is believed by many trained observers, is to conduct conversations and proposals with the Huerta officials in secret until there are tangible developments. This, it is thought, accounts for the strict reticence that has been manifest in administration circles for many days.

It was reported in diplomatic circles here tonight that copies of the ultimatum had been transmitted to all foreign governments by the United States, in line with the policy of keeping them informed of every step taken in the Mexican situation. The ultimatum was regarded by official Washington as the first step in the American program for which the United States has asked

SUIT AGAINST HARVESTER CO.

UNLESS DISSOLVED, GROSVENOR SAYS TWO FAMILIES WILL CONTROL IMPLEMENT TRADE.

SAYS BIG MONOPOLY

40,000 LOCAL DEALERS DOMINATED BY THE COMPANY.

BRIEF GIVES FULL HISTORY

Tells of Organization in 1902 and the Methods to Land Power in Hands of Few.

St. Paul, Nov. 3.—Edward P. Grosvenor, concluding the first portion of his final argument for the government's suit to dissolve the International Harvester company, this afternoon declared to judges of the United States District court that unless the "Harvester trust" is disintegrated, two families within a few years will own a monopoly of the implement trade in this country for the American farmer. The special assistant to Attorney General McReynolds specified Cyrus McCormick and James Deering of Chicago as the heads of these families and characterized them as "willing to use their great power to fix prices and intimidate local dealers, as means of crushing competition."

"My purpose being accomplished and as I didn't wish to be involved in the anti-constitutional proceedings, which are certain to develop in Mexico, I am compelled to leave the country. I am going abroad where I will remain for some time and will adjust my future action to conditions as I observe them."

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

LOOK YOUNG! BRING BACK ITS NATURAL COLOR, GLOSS AND THICKNESS.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or streaked. Write to Mrs. M. E. Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wavy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness.

By darkening your hair with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell because it does it naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a large sponge of soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrous.

MR. PANDERS NOW LOOKS THE PART

In a Dozen Ways Vitalitas Helped Dallas Man, but Mostly for Gastritis.

"I am one of the Vitalitas enthusiasts," said Mr. Will Panders, the well-known Dallas sign artist and decorator, as he paused at the Vitalitas exhibit in the Dallas fair.

"It has helped me a dozen ways, but most of all it has completely cured me of a most obstinate stomach trouble. For years I have been bothered with it and it had gotten to the form of chronic gastritis. Two bottles of Vitalitas did the work for me. I don't know what it is to have stomach trouble now, or, in fact, anything else the matter with me, and I guess I look the part."

Mr. Panders is now vigorous and the picture of health. It is a truism that many a man with a vigorous form is a weak stomach. It is estimated that 90 per cent of all Americans suffer more or less with indigestion and that more deaths are due to mal-nutrition and its train of ills than all other causes.

Not only for stomach disorders is Vitalitas, the new earth fluid, wonderfully effective, but for all derangements of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood. Even where everything else fails it brings relief. It is wholly a nature product. Disease conditions are driven from the body by its use. Investigate it today at the Powers-Kelly Drug Co. prosecutions of a corporate combination, most of the big cases which have been won in the supreme court having been directed against holding companies or mergers.

The government contends, however, that the International company was formed for the sole purpose of taking over the interstate business of several businesses engaged in selling harvesting implements and that it was in effect the same sort of monopoly as was condemned in the telephone trust case.

"Under the undisputed facts the formation of the International Harvester company was not a normal and natural development of the commerce in harvesting machinery," the brief declares. "It was the child of one not heretofore interested in the business, George W. Perkins, a banker and insurance man, who stepped in at an opportune time to bring the rival manufacturers together; he and others by means of a combination in corporate form destroyed competition and entrenched monopoly. The organization of the International Harvester company in 1902 has been well deserved since that time by a course of conduct on the part of the defendants, clearly demonstrating an intent not merely to serve their monopoly of the harvesting business but also to build up by means of and upon their harvesting monopoly a monopoly of all the business in agricultural implements in the United States."

Organization of Harvester Company.

The steps preliminary to the organization of the Harvester company were taken in July, 1902, according to the brief, when Cyrus H. McCormick, Charles Deering, John J. Glessner and Wm. H. Jones, representing the principal harvesting companies, and George W. Perkins, then of J. P. Morgan & Co., determined to effect a combination. On July 18, 1902, four of the principal companies executed identical agreements of transfer to W. C. Lane, president of the Standard Trust company of New York, and McCormick and Perkins secured an option for a fifth company which afterwards was turned into the selling agency of the corporation.

The government alleges that in executing the agreements with Lane, the defendants sought to evade the antitrust act on evidence of counsel by making apparently bona fide sales of thousands of Christian prisoners by Jews and similar horrors. The president of the court had to warn him again to relate only verified facts.

Mr. Trotsky, who occupies the chair of Hebrew and Biblical archaeology in the St. Petersburg Ecclesiastical Academy, followed Pranaites on the stand. He declared that the Mosiac law prohibited human sacrifice although Jewish history made mention of human sacrifices to Molech. The pious kings of Israel and Judah did their utmost to suppress them. The Jewish religion, he said, has no prescription pointing to ritual murder. In his opinion there was nothing to show that the murderer of Yushinsky was in any way connected with a ritual.

Late in the evening while Prof. Kokovoy, relative of the Russian premier, was testifying, the foreman of the jury intimated that the question at issue was sufficiently clear and, consequently, was needless to hear further detailed theological evidence. The president acquiesced and requested Prof. Kokovoy to curtail his testimony.

On August 12 the defendants incorporated the International Harvester company in New Jersey with broad powers and the capital stock of $120,000,000 was issued to W. C. Lane. The next day, the brief declares, he declared them to McCormick, Deering and Sprule.

"The sweetness of low price seldom equals the bitterness of poor quality."

This is one of the few government

and Perkins, who had been chosen as the three voting trustees to run the harvester business of the new concern and who held the stock in trust for the individuals who had transferred their property to Lane. The property was immediately conveyed to the new company. The option on the fifth company, a Wisconsin corporation, was assigned to Lane seven weeks previously and the property conveyed to him on August 12 and transferred to the International on this day. With these transactions completed, the International, the government contends, practically monopolized the field of harvesting machinery in the United States. In course of time the three trustees issued stock trust certificates to persons entitled to stock in the new company and under the agreement made between the parties interested, exercised all rights and powers of absolute owners of the stock for ten years. By means of this voting trust, the brief alleges, the power to run this vast business was lodged in the hands of a few men and J. P. Morgan & Co. and the McCormick and Deering families, who own from 66 to 75 per cent of the company's stock, have been in control.

The selling agent of the new combination was named the International Harvester company of America and took the place of the Wisconsin company taken into the combine. The officers of the two concerns, the brief declares, were the same from September, 1902, to April, 1910, and directors of the subsidiary company for that period were also directors of the parent company. Its capital is $1,000,000 and the government contends that it is merely the bookkeeping end of the trust and it was formed to enable the larger company to do business in states from which it might be debarred by reason of its huge capital.

In conclusion, the brief recites part of the opinion of Chief Justice Vilain of the Missouri supreme court, holding the Harvester company an unlawful combination. Said this judge: "If the International Harvester company were disposed to exercise the power its enormous wealth gives, and if it were left unrestrained to do so, it could drive every competitor it now has from the field."

Then with dotted maps showing the agricultural states of this country, Mr. Grosvenor pointed out the locations of 40,000 local agents or dealers, who, he declared, are but a portion of the vast selling organization dominated by the International Harvester company.

Through the medium of the general sales committee of the company, said Mr. Grosvenor, acting directly through a district manager, the local dealer was forced to accept the dictates of the "trust" or be crushed. Also, the federal lawyer said, the local dealer was used to keep the corporation informed of competition.

Grosvenor's Arguments.

"We have shown," argued Mr. Grosvenor, "by evidence which cannot be disputed, that Cyrus McCormick, James Deering and Harold F. McCormick, acting as members of this general sales committee, have approved the monopolistic methods of the corporations, managers or employees and in doing so we have established beyond any doubt the character of these people. And that character is such as to make it necessary for the courts to restrain them in the future to prevent the destruction of competition and the entrenchment of monopoly by unfair methods."

The federal prosecutor, touching on the answer the defendants have filed with the court in the Harvester company brief, said:

"The answer of these defendants is solely the naming of an intent to expand their foreign business. Or, in other words, they demand to be permitted to break the laws of this country so that their business may expand. That I insist, is the sum and substance of their answer, and as the court well knows, this is no justification."

Mr. Grosvenor in this connection quoted precedents in the Union Pacific case, the trans-Missouri freight case, the Northern Securities case, the bathtub case, the cotton case and the anthracite case, as substantiating his contention for all lack of justification.

"I am confident," continued the attorney, "that this disposes of the evidence and answer of these defendants. Defendants, I desire to emphasize the point that the combination as alleged was not necessary to the expansion of the foreign trade of any of the individual concerns which went into it. In that respect the answer of the defendants is untrue."

The president of the court had to warn him again to relate only verified facts.

Mr. Trotsky, who occupies the chair of Hebrew and Biblical archaeology in the St. Petersburg Ecclesiastical Academy, followed Pranaites on the stand. He declared that the Mosiac law prohibited human sacrifice although Jewish history made mention of human sacrifices to Molech. The pious kings of Israel and Judah did their utmost to suppress them. The Jewish religion, he said, has no prescription pointing to ritual murder. In his opinion there was nothing to show that the murderer of Yushinsky was in any way connected with a ritual.

Late in the evening while Prof. Kokovoy, relative of the Russian premier, was testifying, the foreman of the jury intimated that the question at issue was sufficiently clear and, consequently, was needless to hear further detailed theological evidence. The president acquiesced and requested Prof. Kokovoy to curtail his testimony.

On August 12 the defendants incorporated the International Harvester company in New Jersey with broad powers and the capital stock of $120,000,000 was issued to W. C. Lane. The next day, the brief declares, he declared them to McCormick, Deering and Sprule.

The government alleges that in executing the agreements with Lane, the defendants sought to evade the antitrust act on evidence of counsel by making apparently bona fide sales of thousands of Christian prisoners by Jews and similar horrors. The president of the court had to warn him again to relate only verified facts.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Senator Burton of Ohio, appointed by President Wilson as one of the American representatives to the international maritime conference for safety at sea, to be held in London next week, talked to the president today about his mission. THE SOCIAL CALENDAR
FOR THIS TUESDAY

The Home association has annual meeting; 10 o'clock; parlors of the First National Bank.

Miss Boddie entertains Bridge Juniors at Huaco club; 3 o'clock.

Mrs. William Breustedt is luncheon hostess to Meadames Fullenwider and Carlisle at Huaco club; 10 o'clock.

All Cotton Palace attractions open afternoon and evening with morning band concerts from Ellery's band.

The Domestic Science has business session with Mrs. George Rotan, Seventeenth and Columbus; 10 o'clock.

MISS FRANCES VAN BODDIE IS BRIDGE HOSTESS

At the Huaco club this afternoon at 2 o'clock the Bridge Juniors will play their weekly game. The hostess is Miss Frances van Boddie.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO MEET
WITH MRS. ARBUCKLE

Owing to the duties of so many members at the Cotton Palace, Mrs. O. M. ArBUCKLE, as hostess to be, also as president of the club, announces that the Woman's club will hold no meeting this afternoon.

MRS. WILLIAM BREUSTEDT IS LUNCHEON HOSTESS

Today, at the Huaco club, Mrs. William Breustedt is entertaining twelve luncheon guests in special courtesy to the visitors to Mrs. Nelson Smith, the Meadames Fullenwider of Chicago and Carlisle of Waco.

THE GOVERNOR'S STAFF
HAS INFORMAL BREAKFAST

In courtesy to their household guest, Governor O. B. Colquitt, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bolton, with Mrs. Flora Cameron, invited the visiting and home members of the governor's staff to have Sunday morning breakfast with them. This gave the social hour as aftermath to the governor's official visit to Waco.

MISS ESTHER GROSS
MAKES AN ANNOUNCEMENT

On Wednesday the culinary department of the Cotton Palace will conduct the cake contest. Miss Esther Gross as chairman announces that she will have members of her committee at the main entrance between 12:30 and 2:30 o'clock on Wednesday to receive the entries. The judges take charge at 4 o'clock in the culinary booth on the second floor. All are invited to call at the booth after this time to see the display and to note the ribbon cakes.

NOTICE TO THE ALUMNAE OF SACRED HEART ACADEMY

As president of the Sacred Heart Alumnae, Mrs. W. O. Wilkes requests that all members who will attend the midyear luncheon at the Huaco club send acceptance with amount due for plate at once. This may be left at the convent or sent direct to Mrs. Wilkes. The matter is important and should receive immediate attention. Only those who respond to this request will have provision for the entertainment made for them by the committee in charge.

WOMEN ARE INTERESTED IN WHITE WAY FOR COLUMBUS

That which found a White Way for Austin avenue impracticable is pronounced altogether feasible for Columbus street, as it is now paved and parked. Some of the women who travel and see things are talking over beginning a crusade towards making Columbus street the great illuminated street for this city. The women along this parkway have great possibility. They, many of them, are talking, and their ideas are good. Why does not some one take the lead and organize all these women into a Columbus street civic society? In union there is strength and by union some of these good ideas will materialize.

FOR THE WOMEN CHAIRMEN OF COTTON PALACE

It is not within the province of the editor of the Woman's department of the Morning News to give minute descriptions of the women's booths, their interesting features, contents, and such. Some of these are exceedingly interesting, and to give publicity, will manifest to the interest taken in the exhibits. It is therefore urged that each chairman of a booth in the women's department see publicity manager, M. B. Davis, and give him sufficient data for making an article which shall lead to the public's intelligent observation of what is to be seen at the Cotton Palace.

WOMEN'S POST CARDS
SHOULD ALL BE SENT

It is the imperative duty of the women of this city to see that every one of the ten thousand post cards for Women's Day are sent through the mail to some women who may be attracted to come to the Cotton Palace. This means very, very little upon the part of any one woman here, but the aggregate means to send the message far and near, and to let it be known that the women of this city have something well worth the trip to see. So, let it be said that voluntarily the women have called for these cards at the Cotton Palace promotion bureau under the Adams hotel, Fourth and Austin, that these are secured from the down town stores. They are free.

MRS. OSCAR B. COQUILLET
MAKES WACO FORMAL VISIT

In acceptance of the invitation of Mrs. J. W. Burt in behalf of the women of this city, Mrs. O. B. Colquitt has formally accepted the invitation to be present on Woman's Day of the Cotton Palace. It is now being arranged that the mammoth parade shall be officially represented by Mrs. Colquitt in the Cotton Palace grounds. It is probable that Governor Colquitt will accompany Mrs. Colquitt. The review stand will be filled by prominent men and women, officials of the Cotton Palace, or members or state appointees of the governor. This feature of Woman's Day is in charge of Miss Kate Friend. Since this is also traveling men's day, some of the notable guests of this body will be invited to join the parade review party.

WE MUST ALL DRINK TEA
AT COTTON PALACE TEA ROOM

The idea in the beautiful little tea room which is featured for the first time at our Cotton Palace, is to provide a place for the social side in Palace life. It is intended for the women of Waco to use in showing hospitality to our strangers. Many of us meet friends on the grounds among the day excursionists. We have no time to take these into our homes, therefore it is quite the little attention.

Ross Parker is to become a bride. Waco is known favorably to this young woman, and Waco is represented by Miss Stella Lacy, who goes down for the wedding.

Also in Bryan, on the eleventh, friends and relatives from Waco accompany Fiske Wright, whose bride is to be Miss Ray Conway.

Mr. and Mrs. Provence, whose brilliant wedding occurred in Taylor a few days ago, are now receiving friends on Providence Heights.

On the twelfth, the marriage of Miss Rose Nelson, in Corsicana, is a matter of moment to the many here who have received invitations.

Away in North Carolina the wedding of Miss Genevieve Cooper is an event of interest.

Within this week out of town guests are arriving for the Stevenson-Graves wedding, which takes place on Saturday.

In Lorena, Miss Mary Hudson is being feted as a bride to be. She will become a matron in this city.

So, it is seen, that while Waco is not giving and receiving in marriage to any extent this season, young men and women directly connected with Waco homes, are paying proper tribute to the love god, Cupid.

THE SHAKSPERE CLUB
ANNOUNCES ITS FLOAT

It is now in order to tell the story which the various clubs will portray upon their floats during the great Woman's parade. The first to become definite as to what it should work out was the Shakspere club. This float will appear in purple and white, the colors of the Shaksperes. As outriders will be in costume two of Shakspere's women, Joan of Arc and Margaret of Anjou. These women were contemporaries in actual history, Joan being the deliverer of France from the siege of the English during the minority of that weak king, Henry the Sixth. She, it is recalled, saw visions in her little village home while tending her father's sheep. She knew the country was disturbed because the soldiers coming to the defense of France against the invading English passed through the tiny town of Domremy. Joan had visions that the Holy Mother was calling her to save France. She obeyed the call and, after many vicissitudes, took on her armor, mounted her white horse, raised the siege of Orleans, and placed the Dauphin on the throne. So great was her influence over her soldiers that the English denounced her as a witch and burned her at the stake after she was betrayed into their hands. For the five centuries since Joan lived, the Catholic church has been investigating her, and in 1909 she was "Beatified" with great ceremony at Saint Peter's, Rome. She is known as "blessed," but is not yet formally canonized. Hence, she is today one of the most interesting women historically the world has ever known.

As second outrider, Margaret, too, is French. She went over from France, married by proxy, to be the bride of the saintly, weakly sentimental king of England. Margaret wore the white rose, because hers is the Lancastrian side in the great Wars of the Roses. Her son, she determined, should have the throne. The father was not strong enough to cope with the situation, so it was Margaret's spirit who animated the cause. She went personally into the battles. Her side lost.

For the float proper the club decided upon the statue scene from Winter's Tale. The story here is of the King of Sicily's accusing his wife of infidelity. He is vehement in his denunciation. All the court sides with her and one faithful attendant. She will appear in the tableau—incessantly the queen for sixteen years. In the meantime, the baby girl is sent by the king to be cast upon the seashore, where wild animals may devour. She is reared by an old shepherd, lives with him until she is sixteen. Then, the king of that country has a young son, who chances across this beautiful young shepherdess, woos and wins her. They escape, when their marriage becomes known, back to Sicily. The Sicilian king, deep with remorse, welcomes them, and then it is that Paulina, the faithful attendant, takes them to see her picture gallery. She has a beautiful statue done by a famous artist. As the statue is disclosed the daughter falls in admiration. Florizel, her husband, the prince, stands by, the repentant king recognizes the likeness to Hermione, his former wife. The statue begins to breathe, to move, and descending, the family reconciliation is complete. This first step forward of Hermione, the queen-statue, is the point at which the Shakspere club depicts the tableau.

Society Notes.

Another week will find Mrs. L. H. Goldstein returned from California to reside among her friends here. She will be in the former Eddins' place on Washington street. Mrs. Goldstein is now visiting her son, Abe Goldstein, in El Paso.

It is indeed regrettable that the work of the Sanger Mothers' club is now erased. This club undertook the herculean task of placing cement walks around the Sanger school. The recent addition to the building has erased the inscription which would otherwise have stood a memorial to some of the pioneer mothers' club work in this city. Many are regretting that forethought had not saved at least the slab upon which the names were inscribed.

Here is something homely but very acceptable to housewives who have labored with the lint from their down bed spreads. These are now lined with a soft wool, something light, warm, and much more sanitary than the escaping particles of lint.

The meeting of the Home association this morning is an important one and should be well attended.

This Cotton Palace time is almost Waco's thanksgiving, so many are the reunions among family and friends.

For the woman who inclines to wood-work in her bedroom, it is suggested that nothing in a wall tint is so harmonious as a light gray, perhaps a stripe of gray alternating with white.

More than ever has there passed this season the bouquet of roses from home garden to carry the message of sweet thought and sympathy. This is a custom much to be commended.

Why no cemetery representation in the great woman's parade? Two organizations of women are engaged in this laudable work. Why not, amidst all the expense of care for the living, something in this parade to say that Waco women are caring for the homes of the dead?

It may be true, but does not the report of that fourteen-foot chrysanthemum up in the East sound as though the tape was stretched just a bit? By the way, this is chrysanthemum season, and the new varieties in chrysanthemum culture are appearing. Watch their new names; these always be-speak some notable man or woman of this day.

One of the interesting features in the session of the C. W. B. M. of the Central Christian church on Wednesday afternoon will be the address of Miss Malone, the recently returned missionary for Mexico.

One of the circles from among the Central Christian church women is making ready for a down-town bazaar for early December. They are enthusiastic over the novelties which they will then display.

Five hundred post cards for Woman's Day are at the public library desk. They are to be had merely for the asking, but carry the obligation that those who secure will mail them to women friends.

Mrs. F. J. Lennox earnestly requests every woman who will be in the parade on Saturday to note every instruction given in the daily press, as to forming the parade. Especially is it desired that the line of formation be clipped from the paper and retained. Women must sustain a reputation for promptness. The parade is scheduled for o'clock, and at that hour the movement begins. Those who arrive late must take the consequences. Marshall Fleming's requests all to be in place under their proper letters at least one hour before the parade is to move. And every entry must remain in the parade until after the official review stand has been passed.

Society Personals.

Delivery routes in the city of Waco are in the hands of Independent Carriers, who buy their papers at wholesale prices.
Subscription accounts are due them, not the Waco Morning News. They are undertaken, not only to give the best and

PLAN TO REVISE THE PURE FOOD LAW.

Judson C. Welliver, Washington correspondent of Farm and Fireside, publishes in the current issue of that periodical an article showing how the pure food law needs to be amended. He quotes Doctor Alberg, chief of the bureau of chemistry, as authority for the statement that pure food labels, the so-called guarantee labels, with which we are all familiar, are entirely unsatisfactory. The label reads as follows: "Guaranteed by Bunkem & Foolem under the pure food and drug act of June 30, 1906." Most people think that label signifies that the United States government knows what is inside of the package and has certified that it is good. The label means nothing of the kind. All it means is that Bunkem & Foolem, the manufacturers, have filed with the government a guarantee that their goods are not adulterated or misbranded and all the guarantee means is that in case any jobber, wholesaler or retailer is arrested and charged with selling bogus preparations, they, the manufacturers, will stand behind him and bear the expense and responsibility. The average citizen thinks that the government is doing the guaranteeing far from it.

What the government ought to have is authority to fix food standards. Mr.
Welliver goes on as follows:

"HIGH COST" AND THE NEW TARIFF.

The combination of an analysis by the Saturday Evening Post and comment by the Atlanta Journal on the cost of living under the new tariff makes an interesting survey of this all-vital question.

"It was never expected," declares the Journal, "that the new tariff would suddenly revolutionize the cost of living.
Its effect in this regard will naturally be gradual and it is well that it should be so, for violent changes would disrupt business and defeat their own purpose. For the average family, there are many items of expense with which the tariff has no connection;
and of the conditions responsible for the distressing rise in the cost of living, the tariff was but one. The reduction or removal of import duties on a number of the necessities of life,
such as wool, sugar and meat will simplify but by no means entirely solve the problem.

Yet, it is pointed out, the benefits of tariff reform are none the less sure and substantial. Whatever is unjust is necessarily injurious. An unjust tariff tax, though its tribute from the consumer amounts to only a few dollars or a few cents a year, is harmful to the country's common interests.
Any system under which the many are taxed for the profit of a few is inherently wrong and weak. The Post draws an apt parallel in this connection.
"The railroads," it says, "might double freight rates on almost all manufactured goods without affecting your cost of living very much. But doubling those rates on the enormous quantity of goods they haul would give them a profit to which they are not entitled. It would not hurt you much if some one robbed you of a quarter every week; but if some one robbed everybody of a quarter every week, he could soon buy the country."

To the individual, the cost of an excessive tariff may not be wholly apparent or particularly burdensome, but
to the public it means the abstraction
of millions of dollars; and in the long run anything that is unfair to the public becomes hurtful to each citizen and
to each household.

With Legal Loophole, However.
"Long Island has a divorcee who is demanding alimony from her husband until she is 123 years old." Austin Statesman has read and Col. Lochridge is in favor of giving it to her on her nerve." So are we, with the "nerve" proviso rigidly regulated by the court.
The dame certainly is apt to lose her nerve long before the 123rd lap.

Editor Rountree "Makes Good."

This deserved commendation by

Dallas Times Herald fits in nicely with our own estimate of the ability of

Editor Rountree, of the Georgetown

Commercial, to land a big event for

Texas Press and its state that we made known when Mr. Rountree went to Chicago for that purpose. "The Nation Editorial association will hold its next convention in Houston and we think that congratulations are due Lee

J. Rountree, of Georgetown, member road's location which "originally belonged to the public" and that there

was "great force to the inquiry whether
the public should not share in their increase."

"It is conceded," said Mr. Henshaw,
"that the property of the Pennsylvania railroad, surrounded by large cities, has increased in commercial value compared with property originally costing

the same amount but not so fortunately located.

"Can it be insisted because of this increased commercial value, the Pennsylvania railroad should be entitled to increased toll for the use of its property because its location may be worth
as much or more than all the investment on the location? If a state grants to a railroad the right to use a pass between mountains, can the company
insist upon the public's paying interest upon an investment equal to the tunneling or the removing of the mountain?"

In other words, then, actual physical valuation should not be the basis
of rate making, just as the best informed men have always held. If a railway's terminals in a big city are

worth one hundred million dollars

what else can one do but value it at

what it is worth? If physical valuation is not actual valuation then the whole work will be of even less value

than it would be if it was actually
what it claimed to be—a physical valuation.

Dr. Edward W. Bernis of Chicago,
declared in an address before the National Association of Railway Commissioners that the adoption of the "reproduction theory" of railroad valuation would establish "far-reaching

and dangerous precedents which will

seriously handicap future efforts for the establishment of equitable rates."

Dr. Bernis made a plea for what he styled "the accounting or historical method" which, he said, ascertains
just what money has been expended to produce an existing property—what has been, instead of what may be."

"The 'reproduction theory,'" he said,
"contemplates an imaginary community in which an imaginary corporation makes imaginary estimates of the cost of an imaginary railroad, or other public utility. They then add an allowance for supervision, contingencies,
insurance, taxes, interest and other expenses during construction. The result is the estimate of the cost
to reproduce certain property."

"That is to pay," comments the Leader. "Dr. Bernis would use one rule
to reach the true physical valuation
of a building he owned and another
rule to arrive at the value of a building or other property owned by a railroad. That in effect is the same argument of Mr. Henshaw. If these two
'experts' give a fair indication of the way the physical valuation farce is to be carried out time would be saved
in dividing the expense of the job up right now among the boys and saving time and trouble."

Texas Viewpoints.

A Classic, Ceaseless Controversy.

Houston Post's exchange interviewee notes that Temple Telegram's "constant reader" called it on the other day and devoted a half hour to telling that paper how she admired State Press of the Galveston News. Most of the time was devoted to expressing her confidence in his erudite knowledge of Grecian mythology, as shown in the circumstance that he persists in declaring that Jupiter belongs to its list of gods. The Quanah Tribune-Chief and the East Texas Register, demands this e. i. "will take notice that the controversy is now a closed incident."

We hope it is. State Press in our judgment—Thomas A. Edison's averment concerning the knowledge of any man to the contrary notwithstanding—knows much, much more about anything than one seven-billion of one per cent.

This raising the dence as to proper use of "Jupiter" and "Zeus" has prompted too much abuse in print by our brethren. We would be S. P.'s champion, if he needed one; and at any rate, we would have this cluster of brilliant scribblers devote their discussions to something warranting worry.

Common to Courtrooms.

"The Clarksville Times," runs Gainesville Herald, "says a 'possum was caught in the courthouse in that city a few days ago. No doubt he desired to file a complaint against some 'coon' who had been trying to break up his home." We cannot admit this is the undoubted explanation of the 'possum's presence in the precincts of justice. It may have been the possum that most lawyers, many jurors and a few judges occasionally find it convenient to play when they consider it needful to delay, compi-cate or put to the bad a trial.

are taxed for the profit of a few is inherently wrong and weak. The Post
draws an apt parallel in this connection.
"The railroads," it says, "might double freight rates on almost all manufactured goods without affecting
your cost of living very much. But doubling those rates on the enormous
quantity of goods they haul would
give them a profit to which they are not entitled. It would not hurt you
much if some one robbed you of a quarter every week; but if some one
robbed everybody of a quarter every
week, he could soon buy the country."

To the individual, the cost of an excessive tariff may not be wholly apparent or particularly burdensome, but
to the public it means the abstraction
of millions of dollars; and in the long
run anything that is unfair to the public
becomes hurtful to each citizen and
to each household.

RAILROAD VALUATION METHOD.

"Congress at the last session passed a law providing for the physical valuation of railroads, an action of very doubtful value, although the cost will be something tremendous. Already the principle thing to be discussed is what is physical valuation. Railroad corporations in making rates are entitled to charge for an increase in the values of their right of way only up to a certain limit," declares Springfield

Leader.

Mr. George A. Henshaw, a member of the Oklahoma corporation commission, so stated in an address before the National Association of Railway Commissioners.

Mr. Henshaw was discussing the elements of appreciation in railroad valuation in connection with ascertaining such valuations for rate making purposes. He held that the increased value of real estate in terminals, right of way, etc., was largely due to the rail-

road's location which "originally belonged to the public" and that there
was "great force to the inquiry whether
the public should not share in their
increase."

"It is conceded," said Mr. Henshaw,
"that the property of the Pennsylvania
railroad, surrounded by large cities, has
increased in commercial value compared
with property originally costing

the same amount but not so fortunately located.

"Can it be insisted because of this
increased commercial value, the Pennsylvania railroad should be entitled to
increased toll for the use of its property because its location may be worth
as much or more than all the investment on the location? If a state
grants to a railroad the right to use a
pass between mountains, can the company
insist upon the public's paying
interest upon an investment equal to
the tunneling or the removing of the mountain?"

In other words, then, actual physical valuation should not be the basis
of rate making, just as the best informed men have always held. If a railway's terminals in a big city are

worth one hundred million dollars

what else can one do but value it at

what it is worth? If physical valuation is not actual valuation then the whole work will be of even less value

than it would be if it was actually
what it claimed to be—a physical valuation.

Dr. Edward W. Bernis of Chicago,
declared in an address before the National Association of Railway Commissioners that the adoption of the "re-

production theory" of railroad valuation would establish "far-reaching

and dangerous precedents which will

seriously handicap future efforts for
the establishment of equitable rates."

Dr. Bernis made a plea for what he styled "the accounting or historical
method" which, he said, ascertains
just what money has been expended to produce an existing property—what
has been, instead of what may be."

"The 'reproduction theory,'" he said,
"contemplates an imaginary community in which an imaginary corporation makes imaginary estimates of
the cost of an imaginary railroad, or other public utility. They then add an allowance for supervision, contingencies,
insurance, taxes, interest and other expenses during construction. The result is the estimate of the cost
to reproduce certain property."

"That is to pay," comments the Leader. "Dr. Bernis would use one rule
to reach the true physical valuation
of a building he owned and another
rule to arrive at the value of a building or other property owned by a railroad. That in effect is the same argument of Mr. Henshaw. If these two
'experts' give a fair indication of the way the physical valuation farce is
to be carried out time would be saved

WACO MEN WIN NATIONAL RENOWN

HEROISM IS RECOGNIZED WHILE THE HEROES STILL LIVE.

W. BRADLEY, C. M. THOMPSON

Men of the Hour Whose Deeds Have Been Publicly Proclaimed by Carnegie Fund Trustees.

Among those who were awarded hero medals by the Carnegie commission last week were Walter Bradley and C. M. Thompson, both of Waco.

The Morning News has already told

WALTER BRADLEY.

of the bravery for which these two were given their awards. Bradley for saving the life of a child on the Cotton Belt railroad bridge, and Thompson for an act of bravery at Temple in which the lives of two children were involved.

Bradley is an employee of the railroad company here. Thompson was born in Lincoln, Neb., in 1886. He is general foreman of the gas department of the Texas Power and Light company, having been employed there since May 26, 1912.

Over 700 Are Rewarded.

Since Andrew Carnegie established a fund of $5,000,000 to provide rewards for various deeds in the saving of human life, over 700 persons have been honored by the hero fund commission.

Heroes and heroines—any number of them—have swum their way to medals rescuing fellow creatures from what would have been watery graves.

They have gone into burning buildings by scores to drag forth human beings that otherwise would have been victims of the flames.

Thrilling rescues by the dozens have been made where trains, moving at a frightful pace, were about to crush out lives, helpless or crazed or treacherous.

Explosions, cave-ins, runaways—all these have figured time and time again in real life dramas in which the finale has been the bestowal of a Carnegie medal.

Yet there are Carnegie medal winners who have gone out of the beaten paths.

It was at Porter's Lake, Penn., that Lucy E. Ernst, 20 years of age, saved Harry E. Schoenbush, aged 28, from death from snake bite. Miss Ernst, though having a fever blister on her lip, repeatedly sucked the venom from a rattlesnake on Schoenbush's shoulder.

Saved From a Rattler.

Porter's lake is in the wildest part of Pike county, where the bear, the deer, the black bass, the pickerel, and the rattle-snake hold dominion. Miss Ernst and young Schoenbush, who were staying in the vicinity, started out one bright July day to inspect a pheasant's nest.

Plowing through the brush, Schoenbush stopped beside a fallen birch and reached down for a stick. From the leaves there came a shrill, singing sound. Then came a quick rush of some sinuous thing, a darting through the air, and Schoenbush straightened up with the cry:

"A rattler's got me. He's struck me on the shoulder."

The young man had ridden his wheel, on which he was an expert, to the depot on an errand, and was awaiting the arrival of the train. Just as it drew near the crossing at the south end of the depot platform, he saw children approaching on their way from school, among them a little boy and his younger sister. The boy crossed the track in safety, but the girl hesitated until the train was close and then started across, but appeared to be dazed.

It was evident to Nokes, looking on at a distance, that the child would not escape the locomotive unless helped. Instantly he mounted his wheel and rode swiftly toward the crossing.

The crowd at the depot platform yelled a warning, believing that Nokes must have lost his head. Then the bicycle rider, with the engine close upon him, was seen to ride directly on to the track and without losing speed lean over and catch the child and pull it on with him to a place of safety, the cowcatcher of the engine barely missing the wheel.

Evidently Andrew Carnegie knew what he was talking about when at the time of establishing the $5,000,000 fund, he made the remark:

"We live in a heroic age!"

American Girl Judged Insane.

Paris, Nov. 3.—Miss Minnie Vail, a former resident of New York who

three weeks ago broke a stained glass window of the American Protestant

Episcopal church and also hurled stones through a window of the rectory of the Rev. Dr. Watson, adjoining,

will be sent to an asylum unless arrangements are made for her return to the United States. Physicians who examined the woman declared her mentally incompetent.

At the time of her arrest Miss Vail,

who is about 45 years of age, admitted that she had broken the windows. She said she was a suffragette, but added that she had private motives for her conduct which she refused to disclose.

Rescuers found the two practically unconscious. For a week Schoenbush lay delirious, and for a week the girl lay silent and still. There had been enough of the venom in the man's veins to bring him to the portals of death. Through the little blister on the girl's lips enough poison had entered

to bring her near to the door of death, too.

For her act Miss Ernst received a silver medal.

Catches Man in Fall.

Then there was the medal for John

Delo, who tried to catch a fellow workman in his fall from an electric light pole, and who was himself badly injured as a result.

Delo, a twenty-seven-year-old electrician, and Roy Yingling, aged 24, lineman, were working together on a job in Oil City, Penn., when Delo glanced up in time to see his companion working at the top of a pole, stiffened from a shock received on the wires. Delo started to climb the pole in going to the rescue, when to his horror he saw Yingling start to fall. The body was coming straight toward him. He could have dodged out of the way, but his only thoughts were of the terrible fall his fellow workman was about to receive. He reached out his arms and Yingling crashed into them, the two being knocked to the ground. The force of Yingling's fall had been broken and he survived. Delo survived, too, but for weeks he lay ill from a fractured skull.

The commission recognized the act with a bronze medal and $500 to reimburse for pecuniary loss sustained on account of injuries.

Fighting Enraged Bull.

What do you think of fighting off an enraged bull with no other weapon than a pocket knife?

Yet that was just what Clifford V. Graves, a Versailles (Ky.) farmer, did one morning. Graves was attracted to his barnyard by cries, to find Merritt L. Brown, a negro neighbor, being trampled and butted on the ground by an angry bull.

Graves looked about for some weapon with which he might combat the animal which was holding a human being helpless beneath its fury. Before he would have time to rush back to the house for a gun, it would be too late. The negro was calling out pitifully. Reaching in his pocket Graves found an ordinary pocket knife, and with it, unmindful of the danger that would be transferred to himself, slashed at the enraged bull.

The animal diverted its wrath toward the interfering Kentuckian, who dashed at the animal, only to be knocked down and severely butted. Finally he stabbed, each time bringing forth spurts of blood, but the knife was a weak weapon at best. Graves was beginning to fear that he would not be able to survive the torture much longer. He was no longer able to make use of the knife. He saw everything turning black.

At the critical moment Graves's huge dog dashed on the scene, attacking the bull with such ferocity that it was chased away. Both men were saved, but Graves suffered from a fractured rib and bruises all over his body.

For his heroism the Kentuckian received a bronze medal and $700 to be applied to the liquidation of his debts.

Fight With Insane.

Sticking his fingers and the toes of his shoes into the meshes of a wire lattice screen, inclosing the porches of a hospital, Thomas W. Moran, climbed a distance of 42 feet and carried on a struggle with an insane woman in order to save her from a fatal fall.

The incident occurred in Pittsburgh, Penn. Moran, a contractor, 42 years of age, was going home from work the evening when he saw a woman trying to make her escape from one of the top-story windows. Moran realized that he must act quickly, and fearing that the woman would come dashing to the ground any instant, he climbed on the wire inclosing the hospital porches, determined to make a rescue.

The man reached the woman as she stood on a two-inch ledge of the screen, 42 feet above the ground. Throwing his arm about her waist, he got behind her and kept her from falling, holding her there for 20 minutes, during which time she struggled desperately to free herself. Feeling himself growing weaker and weaker from the struggle, Moran began shouting for help.

Help came when firemen dropped a noosed rope from the roof. Moran fastened the rope about the woman and she was hoisted and taken into the building. The rope was again lowered, and Moran tied it about himself and was let down to the ground.

The hero received a bronze medal and $1,000 toward liquidating a mortgage on his property.

Saves a Girl.

For an act of heroism, rivaling as a spectacle the climax of a melodrama and the feature of a circus, Leo Harold Nokes of Sac City, Iowa, has been given a bronze medal.

Nokes, a high school student, 20 years of age, saved little girl from being run over by a train, by crossing the track on a bicycle, in the face of the fast-approaching locomotive and carrying the child out of danger just in time.

The young man had ridden his wheel, on which he was an expert, to the depot on an errand, and was awaiting the arrival of the train. Just as it drew near the crossing at the south end of the depot platform, he saw children approaching on their way from school, among them a little boy and his younger sister. The boy crossed the track in safety, but the girl hesitated until the train was close and then started across, but appeared to be dazed.

It was evident to Nokes, looking on at a distance, that the child would not escape the locomotive unless helped. Instantly he mounted his wheel and rode swiftly toward the crossing.

The crowd at the depot platform yelled a warning, believing that Nokes must have lost his head. Then the bicycle rider, with the engine close upon him, was seen to ride directly on to the track and without losing speed lean over and catch the child and pull it on with him to a place of safety, the cowcatcher of the engine barely missing the wheel.

CONTINUE ARSON CASES

ON ACCOUNT OF ABSENCE OF F. O. HILL AND WIFE, SET TO MAY 4.

$500 Fine Against Each Was Transferred From Fort Worth to Weatherford.

Weatherford, Tex., Nov. 3.—On account of the absence of F. O. Hill and wife and D. W. Fulkerson, whom the state asserted to be material witnesses, the First Baptist church arson case against Lee Weatherford, Bill Ratliff and Roy Eastus was continued until May. A motion for the release of Ratliff on habeas corpus was set for hearing Saturday of next week. Eastus and Weatherford already are released on bonds.

Failure of witness to appear in the morning caused a postponement of the trial until 1:30 in the afternoon, when further postponement was made.

Prosecutor D. M. Doyle said that if they were present at that time the state would be ready; without them, he said, they would not.

The defense said it would be ready whenever called upon and would resist any effort to detain.

The case of Roy Eastus was called for and a short recess was taken while Attorney Gilcrease prepared an affidavit and motion calling for Weatherford's trial first. Before passing upon this the court asked the state to announce whether or not it was ready in the Eastus case and the call of witnesses with the failure of Hill and his wife to respond was followed by adjournment.

History of Case.
Lee Weatherford, Bill Ratliff and Roy Eastus were accused of burning the First Baptist church and persons of Ft. Worth, following the all-night confession of Lavender before the grand jury. Lavender implicated them, though since then he has repudiated the confession and made many other conflicting statements. However, the prosecution claims it can make out a case without Lavender.

As soon as the three men were placed under arrest, Weatherford in Fort Worth, Eastus in Longview and Ratliff in El Paso, the state asked for a change of venue. This was contested by the defense, but was granted when County Attorney Baskin admitted on the stand that he did not believe the trio guilty, but insisted that he thought Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the church, guilty. Following this statement District Judge Brown ordered the cases transferred to Weatherford.

Originally Rev. J. Frank Norris, pastor, was charged with burning the church, but the indictment was dismissed several months ago. The pastor, too, was indicted for perjury in connection with the whole First Baptist church fire mystery, but subsequently acquitted.

Special prosecutors have been employed. The array of legal counsel on both sides is immense and brilliant.

Hill and wife were not present when court met this afternoon. Judge McKenzie entered a fine of $500 against

THE MARVEL OF THE COTTON PALACE

Electrical inventors have harnessed the lightning and put it to so many uses that it is really a marvel to contemplate. Mr. Edison says electricity is only in its infancy, yet Mr. Edison has given to the world so many electrical devices that make life easier for us, that it is hard for us to see, as he does, that there is still room for greater improvement. We see the housewife busily engaged in other duties while the motor operates the washing machine; we see the hot stove eliminated while she irons with ease and comfort; we see the toast quickly prepared for the morning breakfast, and a chafing dish for the midnight luncheon. Throughout our shops, factories and mills quiet running but efficient motors operate the various machines quietly, efficiently and economically. Our streets are made as light as day, and our merchants announce their wares in flaring headlines throughout the night.

The advance in the uses to which electricity's Cousin, Gas, is put are almost on a par. The new gas range and stoves, as well as water heaters and numerous other devices, bear witness to the peace and comfort to be derived from the modern use of this old essential commodity.

THE COMBINED ELECTRICAL and GAS EXHIBIT BY THE ELECTRICAL AND PLUMBING CONTRACTORS OF WACO WITH TEXAS POWER AND LIGHT COMPANY

Is, without doubt, the most wonderful, novel, beautiful and complete display of electrical and gas appliances, which has ever been made in the State of Texas. The electric and gas booth at the Fair occupies a space of 2100 square feet, and is designed for the purpose of promoting the electrical and gas industry and acquaint the public with some of the many uses to which these appliances can be put. It is very apparent that the designers have spared nothing in their efforts to make this the greatest exhibition of all time.

PRETTIEST DISPLAY AT THE FAIR

In his ears, was what led to the confession.

"The words that woman uttered," he said, "as she knelt on the floor after I had struck her with the pistol, and the warm blood which spattered over my hand and arm when I drew the knife blade across her throat, is more than I can bear to think of. When I close my eyes I can hear those words ringing in my ears and often I awake and find myself trying to wash the woman's blood from my hands and arms."

"What makes us think we have the slayer of the woman is the fact that some of the incidents that he has detailed have been verified," said one of the officials who has been working on the case. "We lack but the knife with which the actual crime was committed. We will have the weapon I believe, soon, and it is possible that we will also be able to introduce in evidence the blood-smeared coat which the man wore on the day the crime was committed."

How Crime Was Committed.
Barr says that on the morning of the killing he started for the city about 7 o'clock, that he met a friend and told him he was going to kill a woman, and that when he did this he would be "long gone" from Dallas; that after he had murdered the woman he walked over and caught a Commerce street car and rode to the fair grounds; that he got off at the entrance to the fair grounds and walked over in front of the ice cream factory at Exposition and the Texas and Pacific tracks, where he met a woman and talked to her a short time.

He says at this place a woman gave him $100. He says that she then warned him to get out of Dallas. Officers discredit the story that Barr was given $100.

Visited Shoemaker's Shop.

The man then said that after leaving the woman he went to a shoe repair shop and had one of his shoes repaired; he told the cobbler that he had just got out of a jail in Mexico and only had 30c and the cobbler only accepted 20c for the work that he did. After leaving this shop Barr says he went back to the railway yards and caught a freight and rode out to a water pumping station, where trainmen made him get off. Near this place he helped a negro woman carry a lard can full of water and washed his hands and tried to wash the blood from his clothing. He says that he hung around this water tower practically all that day and caught a train that night and went to St. Louis and then to Indiana.

One thing in the confession which has not proven satisfactory to the officers is Barr's memory in regard to the interior of the office where the young woman met death. He says that he killed the woman near a window in the room where the body was found. He also said that there was a typewriter in the room where he attacked the woman. Such was not the case. Barr is sure, however, that the room in which the death struggle occurred was a laboratory. He does not remember, however, of biting the woman, but admits that he might have done such a thing.

May in Regard to Office.

Officers say that the man's memory in regard to the appearance of the interior of the office could be hazy. They declare that they will try to prove that within an hour before the murder was committed Barr had at least seven drinks of whiskey. They say that this would be enough to cause the man's mind to be slow in grasping the less minor details of the interior of the office. It was learned that the shoemaker had been before the grand jury and at first the shoemaker insisted that the man who was in his shop was not as heavy as Barr. Then, it is said, Barr asked the shoemaker if he remembered a man who said to him that he had just escaped from a jail in Mexico. When Barr said this the shoemaker is said to have taken another look at him and then declared that he was the man who was in his shop.

The officers declare that they can secure a witness to testify in regard to the case and also say that she remembers a man coming to the house and helping her carry water and attempting to wash something from his clothing.

Formal Complaints Filed.

It was learned today that a formal complaint was filed against Meade Barr. The charge against Barr was filed by Chief of Police Ryan before he went to Memphis to secure the man and charges murder. County Attorney McCutcheon when seen to day declared that he had nothing new to give out in regard to the case.

Doubt Man's Story.

The officers who have been investigating the case say that the man who has confessed voluntarily to the man brutal murder ever known in Dallas, with out hope of clemency, of any kind. Several that in their opinion the man never committed the murder. They say that the only possible motive he could have for telling such a story is that he wanted to be avenged on the woman he has involved in the

me the whole story, in order to fight me, he said. He said that the negro was attacking a white child and that he shot him in fighting to keep the child from harm. He said that northern sentiment for the negro sent him to the penitentiary. He was a generous, open-hearted boy when he came to me, rather irresponsible, but anxious to learn all he could.

"I have never seen a young fellow try harder to learn than Barr did. He picked up painting so quickly that I raised his wages from an apprentice before he had been with me two weeks.

"Barr had a mania that was most remarkably developed. He would come to work and tell us the most terrible tales of fights that he had engaged in at different times of his life which we would know were untrue. He would laugh at him. It was his worst fault. He was a braggart of the worst type and thought that the worse the tale sounded the better story it made. After learning his ways we paid no attention to him.

"The Friday before the Brown murder he called me up by phone. 'I fight last night,' he said, and was terribly excited. 'I will have to get out of Dallas at once.'

"'Come on and go to work, Red,' I told him, 'you have not harmed a soul.' 'Yes, I have,' he cried. 'That negro can't live and I must get out while I can. Will you let me have the money?'

"I called up the police and soon found out that there had been no cutting scrapes at all."

TO MAKE YOUR HAIR MORE BEAUTIFUL

To give your hair that gloss and lustre and wavy silky softness, use

Harmony Hair Beautifier. It takes away the dull, dead look of the hair, and makes it bright, turns the stringiness into fluffiness—overcomes the oily odors and leaves a sweet, true-rose fragrance—makes the hair easier to put up neatly and easier to keep in place.

It is just exactly what it is named—a hair beautifier, and whether your hair is ugly now or beautiful, it will improve its appearance.

You'll be proud of and delighted with the results of your money back. You only to apply simply, sprinkle a little on your hair each time before brushing it. Contains no oil; will not change the color of hair, nor darken gray hair.

To keep your hair and scalp dandruff free and clean, use Harmony Shampoo. This pure, liquid shampoo is most convenient to use because it gives an instantaneous rich, foaming lather that immediately penetrates to every part of hair and scalp, insuring a quick, thorough cleansing.

Washed off just as quickly, the entire operation takes only a few moments. Contains nothing that can harm the hair, leaves no harshness or stickiness—just a sweet-smelling cleanliness.

Both preparations come in odd-shaped, very ornamental bottles, with sprinkler tops. Harmony Hair Beautifier $1.00; Harmony Shampoo 50c.

Both guaranteed to satisfy you in every way, or your money back. This simple and harmless formula has won wonder for all who have tried it, quickly relieving chronic and acute rheumatism and backache. "From your druggist get one ounce of Tonic compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of Calocidine (in original sealed package). Mix these two together and put them in a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed-time." Good results come after the first few doses. If your druggist does not have this compound, he can get it for you in a few hours from his wholesale house.

Don't be influenced to take a patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Tonic compound in the original one-ounce, sealed, yellow package. This was pure heroin last winter and hundreds of the most cases were cured by it in a short time. Published by the Globe Pharmaceutical Laboratories of Chicago.

START SURVEY FOR INTERURBAN

Secrecy Maintained by Parties Behind Revival of Merlin-Tom-pie Line.

Temple, Nov. 3.—Under the leadership of Captain S. L. Owen, of this city, a corps of surveyors took the field from here today in the surveying of a route for a proposed interurban electric line to connect Temple and Merlin. The greatest secret of the persons responsible for this arrangement is that no one vouchsafe any information aside from the fact that he has contracted to perform the work and will complete same within a space of six weeks or less, and that the money to pay all expenses has been placed at his disposal.

This venture revives interest in a project that has alternately stirred the people of Temple and Merlin for a number of years, as a connecting interurban line has been the dream of both communities for so long.

At least four surveys of the proposed line have been made at previous times, the last being about a year ago.

CAUCUS IS LIKELY

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS FREE TO DISCUSS POSSIBILITY OF
ADOPTING PLAN.President Stands by Currency as It Passed House—Await Election Results.

Washington, Nov. 3.—There was lively speculation among senators generally today as to what would occur when the senate consideration of the administration currency bill begins on Wednesday.

The freedom with which democratic senators discussed the possibility of a caucus to insure harmonious and early action led to the belief that such a plan might yet be adopted by the administration supporters in order to prevent radical changes in the bill.

Chairman Owen said after a conference at the white house that a report would be forthcoming in a few days.

Senators Thomas and Overman also discussed the currency situation with the president.

"Wait 'till Wednesday," remarked Senator Overman as he left the executive offices.

The president is awaiting tomorrow's elections in New Jersey, Massachusetts and Maryland and it is said that if they result in democratic victories he will feel stimulated to urge with renewed vigor early action on the house bill.

The president made it plain today that he would stand by the bill as it passed the house and would not consent to any changes in fundamentals.

BLIND CHILDREN TO PERFORM

Grace of Body, Skill and Agility Exemplified in Exhibitions to Be Given Next Friday.

Cotton Palace exposition patrons will be given an opportunity Friday afternoon to witness the marvelous exhibitions for which the children of the State School for the Blind at Austin are famous.

Twenty of the blind children will perform in the coliseum afternoon and evening, going through their curriculum of gymnastic exercises.

The exhibition will include fancy skating by two small blind children, whose skill and agility have excited admiration wherever they have appeared in public.

Temple Christians Buy Church.

Temple, Nov. 3.—The congregation of the church of Christ of this city has acquired ownership of the frame church building on Seventh street and Avenue G, the former home of the memorial Baptist church, and occupied its new possession Sunday for the first time. The Baptist congregation is now housed in its new $30,000 church home on Thirteenth street and Avenue H and the congregation has not been made public. By this transaction the Church of Christ comes into possession of a permanent home.

CITY CHARTERCOURSE AGREED UPON BY COM-

SESSION.

AUDITOR TO BE COMPTROLLER

Alternative Vote of the People on Creation of the Office—Other Important Changes.

Radical changes were written into the charter last night by the general charter revision committee and when the smoke of argument had cleared away the provision calling for a city comptroller or auditor had been reinstated and action had been taken which will result in making the bid for city treasurership open to private persons as well as banks.

Principal changes were the decision to change the name of auditor to city comptroller, permit the people to vote alternatively as to whether such an office be created; decision to provide that the public service commission be appointed by the board of city commissioners, and to permit the voters to say at the polls whether they desired a public service commission; the insertion of the words, "or person," into that section of the charter providing for city treasurer which does away with the condition which would have left the matter of bidding for this office open to banks alone; the final passage of resolution permitting the voters to express themselves as to the abolition of the water department. The amendment submitted to provide that city commissioners run for places and not for a definite position on the board was lost, but it was so modified that it was susceptible to the proponents of the amendment.

Consideration of these matters, which had previously been brought up, consumed the greater part of the time of the meeting, and that reason progress on the adoption of amendment was slow.

Argue Friedlander Amendment.

The amendment submitted by L. Friedlander, providing that city commissioners run for the position of city commissioners, their positions on the board to be designated by the board of commissioners instead of running for their several positions on the board, elicited the first discussion.

Mr. Friedlander's motion would have eliminated a great deal of that section creating the offices of city commissioners and would have substituted the words "election of commissioners to hold for a definite period of time."

The amendment was voted down, eliminated the specifications of the duties of each commissioner and left them to handle the affairs of the city in a body and to select their own members for the places which were in the commission's mind the way commissioners fill their places.

In reply to this E. F. Carroll said it was the intent for the people to name the men to fill a certain position and he offered as a substitute that the article be made to read that each commissioner should have general supervision, subject to the control of the board of commissioners of the department in which he is in charge.

Dalton For Submission.

Crate Dalton offered to submit the question to the people on alternate vote.

Mr. Friedlander's amendment being killed on a tie vote, the chair voted to kill. Mr. Friedlander accepted the Carroll amendment, saying it relieved the situation he was trying to do away with, which was to provide commissioners from having absolute authority in his department.

Attorney Marshall Surratt submitted an amendment to article 22, for the purpose of making that article constitutional. It was accepted.

For City Comptroller.

D. E. Hirschfeld moved the position of city auditor be created, as provided for in the original draft of the charter and voted down in the committee. The discussion resulted in the changing of the name to city comptroller. On this change the committee voted that the comptroller could be selected at any time by the board of commissioners to audit all city books.

The Hirschfeld motion carried. The question will not be submitted to the people, the comptroller position being created at a salary of $400 per year. Charles Sanger favored the office, as did many others who considered a competent man in the position would save the city his salary within a short time.

None of Content.

The principal fight of the evening occurred when the general amendment, which provided that individuals as well as banks be permitted to bid for the city money, was introduced. In introducing his amendment, Mr. Friedlander said he was not seeking to change the charter, but was trying to put it in a better shape so that the sub-committee had eliminated the provision which permitted an individual to bid for city money. In the course of his remarks he said he saw no necessity of permitting the charter to turn over to the banks the city's money, saying it was better to have the city keep its money and to give the banks the money than it was to give it to a mercantile establishment to buy merchandise. The name of Sanger Bros. was drawn into the discussion, by reason of the fact that Sam Sanger, the dean of that firm had bid for the funds at the last election.

Banks the Now Bid First.

Carroll said the bank now provides for the banks to bid first, and in the event they don't offer a reasonable rate the individual will be given an opportunity.

Surratt said the board of commissioners violated all laws recently when they refused Sam Sanger the treasurership of the city, saying they were trying to protect the city, and in doing so strained at the gnat and swallowed the camel.

Former Governor said the money in the banks would benefit more people if it was in the hands of individuals. D. E. Hirschfeld said the city could not afford to place the money in the hands of an individual, but some provisions should be made to prohibit banks from getting together on their bids.

He said the city of Waco should not at any time have $100,000 on hand, which amount was in the treasury when the last bid for the city treasurership were made. George Robinson said there should be less than $100,000 in the treasury.

L. Miguel said if a private person was elected treasurer and the money was taken out of Waco, interest in this city would go to 10 per cent.

Charles Sanger's View.

Charles Sanger said he did not believe that Sanger Bros. would bid again for the city money, but he could not understand how the city of Waco could think of hoarding money for the bankers' business. He said the city's aim should be to reduce taxes. He said he understood recently an order was made to the city that the city could have purchased $200,000 worth of its bonds and made $9000. The bonds were offered at 101, when they had been sold at 104.27. He said he was not criticizing the commission, as that was the wiser course, and if they had bought the bonds it might have made money right in Waco, saying it would disturb conditions by taking $200,000 out of the banks. He also said the condition should not have arisen when the city had that much money in the banks, and ended his statement by saying the commission should take the money out of the church. The Messrs. Sanger are brothers and are engaged in the business of general contractors here, while the brides are both well known and very popular young women of this city.

It was stated by Peyton Randle that the new charter would eliminate the

J. W. SCOTT KILLED AT TEMPLE

Is Thrown From Cart and Neck Is Broken—Found Dead in the Road.

Temple, Nov. 1.—While driving a fracticous colt to a cart in the country, about three miles west of town today, J. W. Scott, a well known resident of Temple, was hurled from the vehicle when the animal bolted, and striking the ground with his head and shoulders, suffered a broken neck which caused his almost instant death.

The accident occurred on a country road and it was some time after before the body was discovered lying in a pasture.

Scott had resided in Temple for nearly thirty years and was well known to the older inhabitants. For many years he was proprietor of the sole black line there in operation in Temple, and during later years has been engaged in several lines of business. At the time of his death he was conducting a restaurant near the Katy passenger station. He was about 60 years of age. Justice Cooper viewed the remains and returned a verdict that death was caused by accident. John W. Scott Jr., a son, resides here.

On account of litigation the building has been vacant, but for $1,500 it can be fixed up and rented for at least $200 per month, which would pay interest on $24,000. This property ought to carry a loan of $10,000. You might be able to buy this at a great bargain—say $12,000 to $18,000—a bargain at either price. Interurban runs right by the door. Racing Begins Today Live Stock In Ring

Beginning today one of the most spectacular racing and livestock exhibits ever seen in Texas will be produced every day at the Cotton Palace.

The track has been rolled steadily for two days, and is in excellent condition for record breaking races; in addition, it has been banked at the edges like an automobile course to permit a free rein to the chariot drivers. Men were at work till midnight last night getting the latter feature perfected in order that the chariots might put on their first race this afternoon.

More Than 100 Ponies.

The pony department contains more than 100 entries by Joe F. Cavit of McGregor, T. C. Westbrook of Waco and Vivian Westbrook of Waco.

Among Mr. Cavit's ponies are two almost perfectly matched buggy teams, one 48 inches in height, the other 41 inches. The smaller ponies, "Diddle and Dumpling" are sorrels, of such equal proportions and identical markings that it is hardly possible to distinguish them except by the different shades of their manes.

The 48-inch team are a pair of beautifully proportioned painted ponies bearing the names, "Mutt and Jeff." "Domino" is a perfectly marked stallion, black and white, 41 inches in height. "Queen" a 47-inch painted pony, is one of the most versatile of the saddle animals.

The smallest pony on the grounds is "Woodrow Wilson, 38 inches in height, a sorrel stallion belonging to T. C. Westbrook.

"Taft" and "Shadeland Narmo" two other stallions of the T. C. Westbrook stables, are well shaped and marked specimens of the painted and black type.

In addition to his pony string, Mr. Cavit has entered a dozen high-grade jacks, four of them having been brought from Dallas last week, where they took number of prizes.

Trotters Are Pacers.

The chariot races that will be staged by these teams today will be an entirely different exhibition from the usual circus chariotering, the real racing feature being retained. In addition to the chariots, there will be races between men riding four horses while standing upright.

Ponies Races Today.

Two of the leading pony exhibitors of the livestock show have arranged for a set of running Shetland races,

North Bangor, N. Y.—"As I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with great benefit I feel it my duty to write and tell you about it. I was ailing from female weakness and had headache and backache nearly all the time. I was later every month than I should have been and so sick that I had to go to bed.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and these troubles have disappeared like magic. I have recommended the Compound to many women who have used it successfully."—Mrs. JAMES J. STACY, R.F.D. No. 3, North Bangor, N. Y.

Another Made Well.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done wonders for me. For years I suffered terribly with hemorrhages and had pains so intense that sometimes I would faint away. I had female weakness so bad that I had to doctor all the time and never found relief until I took your remedies to please my husband. I recommend your wonderful medicine to all sufferers as I think it is a blessing for all women."—Mrs. L. E. WYCKOFF, 212 S. Ashley St., Ann Arbor, Mich.

There need be no doubt about the ability of this grand old remedy, made from the roots and herbs of our fields, to remedy woman's diseases. We possess volumes of proof of this fact, enough to convince the most skeptical. Why don't you try it?

WACO BABES TRIUMPHANT

Jim Wright, Miss Lizzie Speight, Mrs. Welbusch, Mrs. B. F. Ager, Mrs. Walter Reese, Mrs. George Oliver, Mrs. Jessie Gray Smith, Mrs. D. E. Hirshfeld, Mrs. C. N. Smith, Mrs. J. T. Harrington and Mrs. J. E. Allison.

Through the activity of these ladies districts had been formed and babies from every part of the city and county had been invited. Each district chairman was there to receive the babies she had solicited to enter the show, and seats were provided for mother and child, as the case might be.

It was not long until the dancing floor of the coliseum was crowded with anxious parents and crowding, cooing, smiling babies. None of the babies was crying. Each was on his or her good behavior and each was dressed in its best bib and tucker. While babies did not know when they would pick them up and poke their ribs, and pinch their cheeks, they appeared to understand that something out of the ordinary was doing, and judges were given the sweetest smiles, and pretty lips puckered out to them in blissful enjoyment of the whole affair. Mothers were prepared with statistics as to age, weight, size and measurement, and no child was overlooked by the careful judges who made the circuit of the entire room.

The judges for the sweepstakes and for all classes up to 4 years of age were Mayor Walstein Bowman of Hubbard and Mrs. R. L. Kinchloe and Miss Ora Caldwell of Bishop. The judges for the babies between 3 and 4 years of age and for the fattest baby were T. K. Sparks of Chicago, Miss Nolie Battle of Bryan and James Hayes Quares of Waco.

It was an interesting affair, and the seats in the coliseum were crowded with spectators during the entire affair, watching the dilemma of the judges as they would pass from one child to the next and back again and from one group to another group as decisions were made.

It was hard to choose between pretty babies in many instances.

The following were the prizes awarded:

Class One, Age Six Months.

L & G. H. HOLDS ELECTION

Directors Re-elect All Former Officers, After Themselves Being Re-elected.

Houston, Nov. 1.—The annual election of directors and officers of the International and Great Northern railway was held today in the general offices of the company in this city, resulting in the re-election of directors: T. J. Freeman of New Orleans; Frank J. Gould, New York; R. Lancaster Williams, New York; Henry Martin, Houston; A. R. Howard; W. K. Morris; James Jones, all of Houston, and F. W. Cook, San Antonio. Kingdon Gould was elected as successor to his father, George J. Gould.

A meeting of the directors was then held and all of the former officers re-elected. They are: Thomas J. Freeman, New Orleans, president; Geo. H. Taylor, New York, vice president; H. Martin, Houston, second vice president; A. R. Howard, Houston, secretary and treasurer.

CARS ARE IDLE IN INDIANAPOLIS

THIRD DAY OF STRIKE ENDS
WITH NO ATTEMPT AT SERVICE.

CHARGE PARTISAN POLITICS

Alleged This Is Reason Traction Company Fails to Get Protection.

Indianapolis, Nov. 2.—The third day of the strike of employees of the Indianapolis traction and terminal company ended tonight with no attempt to move the cars which have stood idle in the streets since late Friday night.

Charges that partisan politics has caused the police to fail in giving the traction company sufficient protection to run its cars today were made by candidates for office at tomorrow's election. An effort of Sheriff Porteous to swear in 200 additional deputies resulted in a charge that he had summoned the men chiefly for the purpose of reducing their activities in the police. The police situation was further complicated late in the afternoon when a suit for the annulment of the company's charter and the appointment for a receiver was filed. The plaintiff is Attorney Albert C. Pearson. He sues as a tax payer and alleges that the company by its failure to operate cars for the last three days has violated its franchise contract with the city. The summons in the suit was made returnable November 12.

After a day in which numerous minor riots were reported, Thomas Carlton, a chauffeur, was shot and fatally wounded while watching a crowd of sympathizers making an attack on the Louisiana car barns, where the striking drivers are housed.

Robert L. Todd and Mahoney, superintendent of police, were bruised and forced to make a run for the terminal station while mounted police forced the crowds back. Todd and Mahoney again were attacked while passing the state house building and forced to take refuge in a street car to escape a shower of bricks and stones thrown from the state house lawn and from the balconies of nearby buildings. The mounted police rushed the state house lawn and made it possible for Todd and Mahoney to reach their offices.

Four of the policemen assigned to guard the strikers in running the cars, crowded on platforms to protect the non-union men. Mr. Todd declared no further effort would be made to touch the cars until assured that the men would have ample protection.

Charges of politics were made after Sheriff Porteus had issued summons for 200 representative business and professional men to be made deputies. Not more than a fifth of the men answered the summons and after the sheriff had explained his purpose Leo K. Feder of the Martin County Mail, and former president of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association, charged him with issuing the summons for the purpose of keeping active republicans from working in the election.

Mr. Feder asserted that of the 200 summoned not more than ten were of the sheriff's political complexion. "I do not think you were sincere in calling us here," he said. "This is simply a political movement. You have gone through the list of political workers and selected the men simply for the purpose of crippling your political opponent on election day."

Twelve arrests were made during the day, most of the prisoners being charged with inciting to riot and throwing stones. All the prisoners were taken from the crowds that flocked around the cars and threatened the strike breakers.

EDWARD MORRIS DEAD

CHICAGO MULTI-MILLIONAIRE
WAS ONE OF BEST KNOWN
MEAT PACKERS.

Started Business Career at Age of 14—Wealth Estimated Nearly $50,000,000.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Edward Morris, president of the Morris & Co. packers, died at his home here today after an illness of more than a year.

Mr. Morris was born in Chicago 47 years ago and was the oldest son of the late Nelson Morris, pioneer packer. He suffered a nervous breakdown about a year ago and was obliged to give up active business. He spent last winter traveling in California, but when he returned last spring his friends noted that he had not been benefited by the trip.

The seriousness of his condition became known last week upon the arrival of his brother, Iris Nelson Morris, who hurried from Italy to Chicago, in response to a cablegram. Mr. Morris is survived by his widow, two sons and two daughters.

Edward Morris was a multimillionaire and one of the best known meat packers in the world.

In the will of Nelson Morris the building of the vast fortune was attributed largely to the genius and energy of Edward, who began his business career at an age when most of his companions were barely out of knickerbockers.

He was 14 years old when he entered the office of his father as an employee. So keen was his interest and so great was his aptitude he displayed in business affairs that even his father was astonished.

Edward Morris was a multimillionaire and one of the best known meat packers in the world.

In 1890 Mr. Morris married Helen L. Swift, daughter of the founder of Swift & Co.

After the death of Nelson Morris in 1907 it was found that his will put the management of the entire estate into the hands of Edward Morris as managing trustee. The estate was to be tied up for twenty years, remaining undistributed and entirely under control of the managing trustee. The value of estate was declared authoritatively to be between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000.

The elder Morris' plan was not carried out as heirs other than Edward retained counsel to contest the will. A compromise was reached dividing the estate into five equal parts, one each going to the widow and the four children.

MRS. HENNING IN DENIAL

Arises From Sickbed to Testify in Conspiracy Case at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Josephine Henning arose from a sick bed today to deny again that she ever knew Clarence S. Funk, former general manager of the International Harvester company. In her cross examination by Attorney Donohoe and Isaac Stieffel for conspiracy to defame Mr. Funk, she was not spared because of her weakened condition. Counsel for the defense endeavored to get her to admit that she had told Attorney Donohoe that Mr. Funk had taken her riding and that she had gone to hotels with him. She repeatedly denied she ever had told anybody she had gone anywhere with Mr. Funk.

Mrs. Henning was followed on the stand by her husband, who asserted he was induced to bring suit charging Mr. Funk with alienating his wife's affections on Donohoe's promise that nothing would ever come of it and that he would be well taken care of.

Colorado Southern's Report.
Denver, Nov. 2.—The report of the Colorado and Southern railroad for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, made public today shows a gain of $165,365 in net income over the preceding fiscal period. The total operating revenues for 1913 were $15,677,676. Operating expenses were $10,622,981. The net operating revenues were $4,454,615. Adding other sources of revenue and deducting other expenses, leaves a net corporate income of $1,465,312 in 1913, compared with $1,469,967 in 1912.

EUGENE WOOD MISSING

LOBBYIST AND POLITICIAN DE-SIGNED TO TESTIFY IN JOHN DOE PROCEEDINGS.

Is the Man Who Gave Hennessy Information That Involves McCall.

New York, Nov. 3.—On the eve of New York's mayoralty election, Eugene D. Wood, the lobbyist and politician wanted by District Attorney Whitman to testify today at the "John Doe" inquiry into the charges of John A. Hennessy against Tammany Hall, could not be found by subpoena servers. Wood is the man whom Hennessy, former Governor Sulzer's graft investigator, said gave him the information that Edward E. McCall, Tammany's candidate for mayor, had borrowed money from former Police Inspector W. W. McLaughlin to pay for his nomination as supreme court justice in 1912.

District Attorney Whitman announced at today's hearing that Wood left town Saturday, the day after Hennessy testified, and that his subpoena

servers had been unable to find a trace of him since. In his stead the prosecutor called the police inspector's son,

W. W. McLaughlin Jr., who recently corroborated Hennessy's accusations

by swearing, in an affidavit published in the New York World, that he had seen a photograph of a check for $21,000, which he said, McCall had given his father in payment of the alleged loan.

McLaughlin was closely questioned by the district attorney and reiterated that he had heard his father and mother discuss the debt and that he had heard his father say he had loaned the money to Judge McCall to pay for his nomination.

The hearing will be continued Thursday.

Treasurer Calls for Warrants.

Austin, Tex., Nov. 3.—State Treasurer J. M. Edwards today issued a call for all warrants against the treasury issued prior to September 1, 1913. There is now sufficient money in the treasury to meet all warrants of this nature, including those issued against appropriations of the Thirty-Third legislature. These latter warrants were held up until the close of the fiscal year by a ruling of the attorney general. Approximately $175,000 will cover the outstanding warrants.

In December Treasurer Edwards believes the warrants issued in September can be paid and warrants issued in October will be paid during January.

Cash basis will be realized on February 19, 1914, according to the present figures.

Cotton.

New York, Nov. 3.—The cotton market was lower today under scattering liquidation, local and southern selling, which seemed to be largely inspired by expectations of an increasing movement, with the appearance of better weather in the south or of increased spot houses. Business was restricted by the fact that New York will be closed tomorrow, while Liverpool and New Orleans will remain open, and trading was comparatively quiet after an early market, the sales steady at a net decline of 12 to 15 points.

Relatively weak cables were considered responsible for an opening decline of 2 to 10 points here, and the market sold off to a net loss of 18 to 21 points during the morning. Houses with some of the needed cotton were not yet well supplied with sell-orders, and private advices claimed that Liverpool had been influenced by increased hedge selling; this probably created an apprehension of an easier spot situation and the market was generally quiet, with little trading. Some stop orders were uncovered and after their execution the market turned a shade steeper on covering for over the holiday and a little buying from trade sources. An Alabama spot firm said that the surplus of cotton in the eastern half will surpass the crop of the past two seasons, but the tendency to increase views of the yield was checked somewhat during the afternoon by the estimate of a Chicago firm, placing the crop at only 13,500,000 bales.

New Orleans.

New Orleans, Nov. 3.—Cotton today was at the decline, bears pressing steadily against it and bulls offering little support. Gossips was the trend of the market, with some buying overnight and some that leading bull interests were only too pleased to see some of their followers liquidate. A few of the features today were the tendencies to higher crop estimates. Of the several important estimates there were all over 14,000,000 and one was over 14,500,000.

Considerable short selling followed the gossips. The market opened steady at a loss of 16 to 18 points in sympathy with the lower prices in other markets Saturday, when New Orleans was closed because of unfavorable weather conditions. Before the middle of the morning prices were at their lowest levels for the day, 25 points down in the most active months. At this decline shorts took profits on a large way and the decline from this source was sufficient to absent further short selling. Toward noon there was a recovery of about 10 points, but in the afternoon prices fell again and the market closed steady at a net loss of 21 to 23 points.

In spite of the better weather over the both the crop reports were not favorable, but made some very bullish claims regarding the damage done by recent low temperatures. This checked the downward movement by causing shorts to be wary of following the decline too far.

Gilbert & Clay's Letter.

New Orleans, Nov. 3.—The market in its immediate aspect seems destined to lower levels. There is less enthusiasm among bulls and the movement continues on a record scale. The weather over the both the eastern and southern areas and the pressure of hedge selling is perceptibly felt. Some seem inclined to change original crop views.

GILBERT & CLAY.

New York, Nov. 3.—Increased southern selling, both here and in Liverpool today was the cause of prices declining about twenty points. This character of offerings brought about general liquidation, which, in the absence of any concentrated demand, made it necessary for sellers to drop their prices in order to attract buyers. The movement of the crop is becoming larger with better weather conditions and consequently the trade only buys in volume at declines.

WACO HAS BEST PAVED STREET

AUSTIN AVENUE WITHOUT PEER
IN TEXAS, SAYS EXPERT
PAVER.

LACKIE TELLS IT TO ROTARIANS

Representative of Texas Bitulithic
Gives the Banner to Stretch of Ten Blocks, Eighth to Eighteenth.

Austin avenue, Waco, from Eighth to Eighteenth street, is the banner street in Texas from the paving man's standpoint.

This statement was made yesterday at the Rotary club luncheon at noon at the State House by T. W. Lackie of the Texas Bitulithic company, who was the speaker for the day.

Mr. Lackie is a paving expert. He went into the paving business as a boy, doing his first work in that line with the Warrens when they first began laying bitulithic and he has been associated with the Warrens and subsidiary companies ever since. The Texas company, while using the Warren patents, however, is all Texas money, and it is growing in strength in this state all the time.

In his address Mr. Lackie said that asphalt paving was laid in this country as far back as 1854. He told of the early work of the Warren family of brothers who engaged in paving, and in 1890 the Warrens sold out to the Barber people. Nothing was heard of the Warrens for several years, when the bitulithic patent was brought out. In 1901 these brothers started out in the bitulithic business, and the first Soda crackers are more nutritive than any other flour food. Uneeda Biscuit are the perfect soda crackers.

Though the cost is but five cents, Uneeda Biscuit are too good, too nourishing, too crisp, to be bought merely as an economy.

Buy them because of their freshness—because of their crispness—because of their goodness—because of their nourishment.

Always 5 cents. Always fresh, crisp and clean.

pavement was laid in Pawtucket, R. I., in 1901. There are now 40,000,000 square yards laid in the United States and Canada, and the pavement is being used in six or seven foreign countries.

Dallas Led in Bitulithic.

It was in Dallas that the first bitulithic paving was laid in Texas. El Paso next and Waco next. He spoke of the paving in Waco and then said that Austin avenue in this city is considered the broadest street in the state.

Mr. Lackie said that asphalt is 87 per cent sand and the balance is asphalt, the bitulithic is 92 per cent rock, and there is 7 per cent to take care of the liquid water, the result being a rock wearing surface with no voids. He explained that Mr. Warren got his patent on the graduation of stone used in the paving, and that the stones run from 1 1/4 inch to pulverized stone, but not sand. They use only selected stone, every material being passed on by a chemist.

The Four Standards.

Mr. Lackie said the four standard pavements are bitulithic, wood blocks, brick and asphalt, and that he considers the wood block fine paving, as good as any, but that it is more suitable for sand and the balance is asphalt, the bitulithic is 92 per cent rock, and there is 7 per cent to take care of the liquid water, the result being a rock wearing surface with no voids.

He explained that Mr. Warren got his patent on the graduation of stone used in the paving, and that the stones run from 1 1/4 inch to pulverized stone, but not sand. They use only selected stone, every material being passed on by a chemist.

That they met with success evidenced by the fact that more than fifty firms had agreed to be represented after the first effort this morning.

Miss Francis Luedde and Mrs. Jack Ray said that the business houses were pleased with the idea. It was expected that the masqueraders would be placed on the floor at the ball in alphabetical order so that each and every firm would be treated on an equal basis.

Fifty Have Signed.

That they met with success evidenced by the fact that more than fifty firms had agreed to be represented after the first effort this morning.

Miss Francis Luedde and Mrs. Jack Ray said that the business houses were pleased with the idea. It was expected that the masqueraders would be placed on the floor at the ball in alphabetical order so that each and every firm would be treated on an equal basis.

Three Cash Prizes.

Three prizes will be awarded, the first $25, second $15, and the third $10. They further stated that they met with surprising success and that only one firm turned them down, and that they would be out again bright and early tomorrow. They expect to close the campaign by tomorrow at noon.

Want All Represented.

The idea of the trades ball is to get every line of business pursuit in Waco to be represented. They will be viewed by thousands of people in the stands at the Cotton Palace auditorium. The business houses will make the costumes as conspicuous as possible, representing their particular business.

Miss Francis Luedde, Mrs. Ray and Mrs. Bass will select the committee which will award the prizes. The ladies engaged to help make Y. M. B. L. day at this Cotton Palace, the biggest yet achieved, and from the results obtained this bids fair to be a fact.

Old timers will remember the many trades balls that have been pulled off in Waco in the past, and are welcoming an enthusiastic manner the efforts of the Y. M. B. L. to revive this interesting amusement.

The expense will be small—only the cost of the costume worn by the firms representatives—and every firm entering has an opportunity to win more than the cost of the costume in prizes offered by the Y. M. B. L.

More Names Needed.

Mrs. Ray and Misses Gross and Luedde will call on some of the business men today that they have not yet been able to see and give them an opportunity to be one of the progressive ones by having one or more couples represent them in this "old stink made new." They are trying to give every firm the chance to come to the ball.

All those who have signed up are urged to select their representatives at once and get busy on the costume, for the time is drawing near, only one week from tonight.

WOMEN DEFER BUSINESS.

Mrs. Godshaw Cancels Meeting on Account of Cotton Palace Season.

The regular monthly meeting of the Council of Jewish Women, which was scheduled for today, has been called off. Mr. A. T. Godshaw, acting president of the council, issued the order yesterday cancelling the November session. Mr. Godshaw explained that the meeting this month is passed over on account of the Cotton Palace exhibition, for that reason that members of the council interested in Cotton Palace events may be able to keep their appointments without absenting themselves from a business session of the council.

Prisoner Pleads Own Case.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 3.—For the first time in the history of the Mississippi supreme court its judges looked down from their bench today upon a man dressed in prison stripes and there to plead his own case.

The prisoner, J. B. Belknap, a former newspaper man of Jackson, has served two years of a ten-year sentence for bigamy. He pleaded today that a lower court judge had erred in refusing to reopen his case. Belknap says he has evidence to prove his innocence.
